The jury comprising film critics, academics and cinema scholars chose the film after seeing 50 feature films, documentaries and shorts made by filmmakers in more than eight countries, including Italy and South Africa.

Well received at the Berlin Film Festival, Gattu, directed by Rajan Khosa tells the story of an urchin who takes up the challenge of
