AROON SHIVDASANI

- Executive Director and founding member of the Indo-American Arts Council, Aroon is passionate about its mission to build an awareness of Indian artists and artistic disciplines (performing, visual, literary and folk arts in North America). She is equally passionate about nurturing and promoting emerging artists in all the disciplines from the Indian subcontinent.
- Aroon sits on the Boards of the Queens Museum of Art, The Museum Trustees Assoc. and The Lark Play Development Company as well as the Advisory Boards of several other art and charity organizations, as well as the juries of the Lortells, beauty contests, grants, art, film and theatre contests.
- She has received numerous awards and recognition from various groups including:
 - Outstanding Citizen awards from the City of New Rochelle, NY in 1988 "for the organization and execution of a French Fete to commemorate the 200th anniversary of New Rochelle";
 - The NY State Assembly in 2001 "for working to build an awareness of Indian artistic disciplines in New York City, to raise money & social consciousness for domestic violence victims, earthquake victims and the victims of AIDS";
 - The City Council, NYC in 2002, "for exemplary service to the community";
 - An Honor & Appreciation award from the Gathering International Health Professions Network, Greater Hudson Valley "for untiring efforts to serve the community" ;
 - Children's Hope Award in 2010 "in recognition of your passionate efforts to bring Indian Arts and Culture to America through the IAAC".
- On January 4, 2015 she was named one of the top 20 Global Indian Women by The Economic Times, India.

ASEEM CHHABRA

Film Festival Director of the Indo-American Arts Council, Aseem has also been involved for many years in various capacities for programming films from the Indian Subcontinent for a number of film festivals in the US.

- Aseem is also a freelance writer in New York City who writes on a variety of topics, including arts, entertainment, social and political issues stories. Aseem has been published in The New York Times, The Boston Globe, The Philadelphia Inquirer and The Courier-Journal, Time Out, New York. He writes a weekly column for Mumbai Mirror – a Mumbai based daily newspaper and also contributes regularly to two Indian-American outlets -- India Abroad and Rediff.com, the leading news portal that originates from Mumbai. His by-lines have also appeared in India in Outlook, and the Indian editions of People and Cosmopolitan magazines.
- Aseem has been interviewed on film and popular culture by several media outlets, including ABC's Good Morning America and Nightline, National Public Radio, CNN, Associated Press, Reuters, The Los Angeles Times and New York Daily News.
- Aseem is an elected member of the board of the South Asian Journalists Association and the New York Chapter coordinator of SAJA, where he often chairs panel discussions on social and political issues, hosts book reading events and other arts discussions.

PRESS & MEDIA COVERAGE

- The festival brings together a collection of indie films as well as better-known Bollywood fare. More than half the films are screening for the first time or making their U.S. debuts. – The Wall Street Journal
- “the best place to see South Asian art in the U.S. and increasingly one of the world's best film festivals in any category.” Huffington Post.
- It could become the Indian counterpart to Sundance. This year's NYIFF still features Indian independent and Diaspora films, but each year it's getting to be bigger, better and more exciting than the last! -- Yahoo News India
- With film festivals dedicated to Indian cinema popping up all over the U.S., the granddaddy of them all, Indo-American Arts Council has upped its game with a new moniker, an earlier date and writer Aseem Chhabra as its festival director. – Daily Variety
- Capping off five days of Indian cinematic excellence, the prestigious festival concluded on Sunday night with the spectacular closing night red carpet premiere of Rituparno Ghosh's powerful film Noukadubi at the Asia Society in Manhattan. -- Hindustan Times
- Not all of Indian cinema is associated with Bollywood. And the Indo-American Arts Council's 11th annual New York Indian Film Festival, going on from May 4 to 8, is the place to get a real feel for the independent and social aspects of Indian film in New York. It may not be all singing and dancing, but there will definitely be some at the festival's red carpet events and after parties. – Audrey Magazine
- Born in the shadow of 9/11 and conceived by the Indo-American Arts Council, the festival, now in its 11th year, has grown from a two-day showcase for a handful of features to this year's five-day feast of 25 feature films (many U.S. or New York premieres) and 22 shorts, including both documentaries and fiction films. The only kind of filmmaking conspicuous by its absence is the Bollywood spectacle. – Film Journal International
- This film festival wasn't in Cannes, but it didn't lack for celebrities and glamor. It wasn't in Sundance either, but the festival did have serious, well-crafted dramas that would please cinephiles. – Khabar
